MYTHS OF HISTORY.

THEY CUT A WIDE SWATH IN THE FANCY OF NOVELISTS.

Pen Pictures of the Past That Read Well, but Do Not Bear Close Investigation. When Our Turn Comes, the Scribes Will Revel In Schemes Undreamed of Now.

While it may not be quite true, it is very nearly true that the historical novel is entertaining entirely on account of its improbabilities. We possess a smattering of general information. At least we so flatter ourselves. History is for us not quite a closed book. We know Cæsar and Hannibal and Napoleon and Oliver Cromwell and Henri Quatre and Richelieu and the Man in the Iron Mask, perhaps even a few others. And when in company with the hero of the historical novel we are ushered into the royal presence, we bow and smirk and grimace amazingly and knowingly. "Charles I? Certainly. His majesty and we are old friends. We possess secrets which his majesty would give his crown and kingdom to know. M. Posterity has confided to us stories that would cause his majesty's royal hairs to stand on end like quills upon the fretful porcupine. Don't try to gull us with appearances. We know all about what's coming. The gracious smile which now illumines his majesty's kingly lips is, oh, so droll! How about Whitehall and the block and the ax? Ha, ha! We are delighted to see his majesty in such excellent spirits."

It is to this faculty of making the reader feel knowing, of impressing upon him his own superiority and the correctness of his own retrospective surmises and decisions, that the makers of historical romance owe in a great part their vogue and popularity. Then out at the elbows soldiers of fortune—nay, even the wine drawers, the innkeepers and the scullery maids whom we meet in the historical romance—somehow manage to plot and scheme and hobnob with the very greatest personages of all times. If a mysterious figure is introduced, of course there is a great personality behind it. The exigencies of the trade make this imperative. From a muffled cloak we will accept a great duke with fairly becoming grace. A disguised voice and stealthy, overcautious demeanor demand a king or a hero who, in history's pages, looms up as mighty or mightier than a king.

Wonder might justly be expressed that a simple soldier of fortune of the Quentin Durward, D'Artagnan ilk should be of such supreme importance to the welfare of nations and the safety of kings. To deny either the Scot or the Gascon would surely be outright heresy. They embody old Caledonia and old France—as we see them. But the collective possibilities that are necessary to give the historical romance fire and go, make in the end it must be acknowledged, a pretty strong chain of improbabilities. To thoroughly appreciate this one would have to read the historical romance that is to deal with our day and to be written 12 score years hence. This, alas, we cannot do! What a screaming farce it will be when it comes! Will it not read like the ravings of a madman? How ludicrous will be the complications! What an extraordinary age our own will seem! But the drollest feature of all will be the sublime gravity, the supreme sincerity with which the whole will be accepted by the reader of that future day. How is it that, in an age like our own, when there are a publisher and a market for every literary conceit and absurdity, no one has thought to anticipate this, the historical romance of the future. Surely it would not be all burlesque.

What marvelous things those scribes will be telling of our age and civilization! What strange and darkling events will be made to take place at our very doors! The mysteries that are to be cleared up are as nothing to those which are to be invented. Our nights and days will be given over to tragic intrigues and fell deeds. Murder will stalk our streets. Swords will leap and cross, knives will gleam, pistols will crack along Broadway, or, if we prefer, Regent street, or the Ringstrasse, or Unter den Linden, or the Boulevard des Capucines. The guet a peur will be supreme. All this will come to pass when the scribes of the twenty-second century sit down to the task of writing their historical novels. And then—other heroes. How mum they are keeping themselves! Why don't they come out of the darkness and mystery and shadow and amuse the age with the narrative of those thrilling and soul stirring adventures with which the romancers of the future will credit them? We know that when the arbitration question is settled and both the United States and England are freed from the possibilities of a hideous and devastating war, it is not her majesty, the queen of Great Britain and empress of India, or the president, or the prime minister, or the secretary of state, who brought it about. Oh, no! That might do very well to gull and beguile and cajole the poor, ignorant masses. The real power behind the throne is the impoverished soldier of fortune, of whom the romance of the historical novelists of the future will tell us. What acts he will spread! What strange and unholy influences he will bring to bear! What ingenuity, cunning, valor, patience, will he employ before the great scheme is consummated and history is made! What dangers he will encounter! What fearful odds he will overcome! We know he is here. Could we doubt the historical romance of the future? We see the result, we reap its benefit, but the cause, the colossal nobody whose machinations brought it all about, where is he? Let him stand forth that the age may do him honor!—New York Advertiser.

Fair Warning.

He—Do you think your father would offer me personal violence if I were to ask him for you?

She—No, but I think he will if you don't pretty soon.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A woman's looking-glass does not lie to her. If she looks carefully and owns the truth to herself, she will acknowledge that it shows to her, as it shows to others, a face full of the ugliness of suffering and pain. If a woman wants her mirror to reflect a pain-free face she should take proper care of her womanly self. She should see that the organs that are distinctly feminine are kept free from weakness and disease. By this means only can a woman remain fresh-looking and attractive.

Women may erase from their faces the lines of suffering by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Over 90,000 women have testified in writing to its marvelous merits. It acts directly on the womanly organs. It makes them strong and healthy. It cures all weakness and disease. It allays inflammation, soothes pain, and calms and steadies and invigorates the pain-racked nerves. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period. It insures baby's health and makes its advent easy and almost painless. All good druggists sell it.

"I am going to write and tell you the benefits I have received from taking your medicines," writes Mrs. J. B. Clough, Box 203, Lisbon, Grafton Co., N. Hampshire. "I am the mother of a nice baby four and a half months old. He is a perfect child and weighs about eighteen pounds. If you remember I wrote you about a year ago about my condition. I cannot give too much praise to your 'Favorite Prescription' as it saved me a great deal of suffering. I got along remarkably well, this being my first baby."

"Knowledge is power." In a thorough knowledge of the human body lies the power that will at last stamp out weakness of the body and mediocrity of mentality. Dr. Pierce has taken a long look into the future through his "Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is full of just such knowledge as will do the family the most good. This book of over 1000 pages and finely illustrated has had an unprecedented sale. About 700,000 copies have been sold at $1.50 per volume. Now it can be had in paper covers for 21 cents in one-cent stamps. In fine French cloth for ten cents more. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

NOBODY HEEDS THEM.

Public Indifferent to Signs Put Up For Its Convenience.

An enterprising advertiser once headed a long printed description of his wares with the line, "Do not read this," and the avidity with which every line was read stimulated other advertisers to resort to the same trick, until it became old and worthless. Signs in public places are treated by the majority of people just the same as the catch line of years ago. Every horse car and every car on the elevated system carries a sign warning passengers that they must not stand on the platforms, but in the busy hours one rarely sees a car which does not carry all the people it can hold on the platform, and no conductor has ever made any effort to enforce the rule. Every car on the Madison avenue line has signs painted on the doors which give orders to keep the front door closed, but nobody thinks of paying any attention to the sign, and it seems to those people who travel on that line that the front door is used more on the Madison avenue line than on any other.

In the waiting rooms of the various railway stations the signs by which it is made known which parts of the place are for women might as well be removed because no one seems to take the least notice of them, and the benches in the waiting shed of the Grand Central station, over which a sign is posted, "Reserved For Women," would be occupied by men continually if the employees did not call attention to the sign.

At most places where people buy tickets, in banks where there are crowds of depositors or people who wish to draw funds from the institution, there are signs showing on which side the line forms, and still there is never a day in any of the larger of these places when some people do not make desperate efforts to form a line all by themselves and work against the one which had been formed before they came. They are of the same class who refuse to keep to the right, and when they come through a swing door on the left side and receive a bump hardly appreciate the sermon contained in the few words which the other man utters: "Serves you right! Keep to the right!"

But there is one sign in public places the disregard for which has aroused much comment. It is in regard to spitting, and the evil that has been wrought by the practice has been so thoroughly discussed by scientific men that hundreds of people have determined that they would help to enforce the rules of the health department and make at least one sign more than a dead letter.—New York Tribune.

Franklin's Desk.

One of the most valuable and interesting pieces of furniture in Philadelphia is owned by Dr. Roland G. Curtin and has a place of honor in his office, at 32 South Eighteenth street. It is Benjamin Franklin's desk, the very one he used for 20 or more years, and at which he did most of his writing, and in which he kept most of his papers.

It is big and broad, with a flat top and two tiers of ample English oak drawers and two drawers in the middle. There are two fronts, making both sides alike. The wood is the finest solid mahogany, the brasswork is handmade and the desk was evidently intended to last for generations. A great stack of letters and old newspaper clippings tell the story of the desk.

After the death of Dr. Franklin it came into the possession of the well known Philadelphia exchange brokers. One letter is very curious. It is from Rev. Edwin Town, to whose uncle it was bequeathed by Mr. Whelen. That letter is to William Bradford, a member of councils in 18[illegible], after the desk was placed in Independence hall and attracted great attention. In it, after exploding the theory that Dr. Franklin and Mr. Whelen had private transactions which led to the possession of the desk, Mr. Town says: "I shall continue to believe, as I have for the last 40 years, that the desk was absolutely the property of Dr. Franklin and that Mr. Whelen, Sr., came into possession of it either before the doctor's death or soon after, when a part of his effects were disposed of, including the [illegible], which Joseph Carr, formerly of [illegible]'s garden, the errand boy of Dr. Franklin at the time of his death (1790), is positive he remembers as occupying a place in the chamber on the right of the entrance hall of the doctor's mansion, which stood at that day on the ground now occupied by Franklin place."

Dr. Curtin got the desk from one of the present members of the Town family. It has been estimated that it may be 150 years old.—Philadelphia Times.

THE ARTIST A PROPHET.

So Suggested the Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

It is not merely the private collectors who are practiced on by the traffickers in bogus "old masters." Sometimes they fly higher and sometimes they may be deceived themselves. In the latter class, perhaps, was the woman who wrote to General di Cesnola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, with the information that she owned a treasure which she wished to realize upon at once and would dispose of at a sacrifice. This treasure, she said, was a celebrated painting of St. Michael carving the dragon, according to the legend of the early Christian church. It was a very old subject, but the canvas was in a good state of preservation. Her great-grandfather had dug it out of the ruins of Herculaneum.

General di Cesnola at once dictated a reply, in which he said in substance: "Madam, if the facts are as you state, you are holding the painting at too low a figure. It is worth millions if it is worth a cent. Herculaneum has been lying under the lava of Vesuvius for 2,000 years. That the canvas should have escaped destruction when the mountain poured forth its fiery contents on the towns at its base is indeed remarkable; that it has further resisted the disintegrating hand of time is no less remarkable; that the artist should have shown a spirit of prophecy and delineated an incident of the Christian religion long before it happened is more than remarkable. It is miraculous. You should keep the St. Michael!"

In a day or so the director received a second letter from the woman. It ran thus: "If the picture is really so valuable, I don't see why you won't take it at $500."—New York Mail and Express.

SHE HANGED A STOVE.

The Woman Was Arrested, However, For Trying to Kill Her Husband.

To intend to hang one's husband and to find instead of a body a stove at the other end of the rope is calculated most certainly to surprise the would be murderer, and to such surprise, in a case related by a French paper, must be added the unpleasant fact that the woman who hanged the stove was arrested on the charge of attempted assassination.

She disliked her husband, who had an unfortunate propensity for strong drink, and, on his returning home one evening intoxicated, resolved to kill him in such a manner as to suggest that he had committed suicide. The man went to bed in his tipsy condition and was soon sleeping soundly. His amiable partner thought this to be the favorable moment for dispatching him to another world, and accordingly set about making her arrangements.

In the ceiling, just above the bed, there was a hole capable of allowing a stout rope to pass. The woman went up into the room above, let a rope slip through the hole, and, returning to the chamber in which her husband slept, attached it by a slip knot round his neck. This done, she went up stairs again, drew the rope tight through the hole in the ceiling and attached it to a beam.

Then, when she believed the job had been done, she rushed, weeping, into the street, telling the neighbors that her husband had just committed suicide. On entering the house, what, however, was their surprise to find a portable stove in the place of a corpse! The husband, who was less drunk than his wife imagined, had released himself and substituted the stove in the nick of time.

Bicycle In African War.

One would scarcely expect to find bicycles and a bicycle club in the heart of Africa and 600 miles from any railroad. One club, in Bulawayo, Matabeleland, South Africa, is in a flourishing condition, having 25 members out of a population of 2,500.

During the late war in Matabeleland these bicyclers all rendered valuable service to the English. By them scouts were often able to "locate the enemy" or to deliver a message where a man on horseback would not have dared to go, for a Kaffir can outrun a horse every time—that is, such horses as they have in Africa.

In one instance a bicycler put to rout a whole impi (a camp) of Kaffirs, who evidently never had seen a bicycle before, and this man, who came nearer to the camp than he had had any intention of doing, and who was much alarmed for his own safety when he realized where he was, took heart again when he saw these Kaffirs throw up their hands as if in consternation, and, uttering savage sounds and noises, jump to their feet and run for their lives. They evidently thought the devil was after them.—New York Press.

For Domestic Woe.

One of the guides at the capitol had an amusing experience. A countryman was shown the wonders of the whispering gallery and the stone which deadens all sound.

After the usual experiment was completed, he astonished the guide by saying: "Mister, kin a body git a stone like that thar hyar in Washington? Yo' see, my wife gits cantankerous at times, an she kin talk pow'ful hard when she gits started. If I could git one o' them things ter stan on out in our kitchen, I'll be willin ter pay well fer it."—Washington Star.

The South Staffordshire regiment was called the "Pump and Tortoise," from its sobriety and the slow, methodical way in which the men went about their duty when stationed at Malta.

THE TARIFF BILL IF PASSED WILL FORCE ANNEXATION.

In view of the passage of the Dingley bill, Canada is now revising its rates to retalite on the United States for the proposed high rates on lumber and other Canadian products which find a market in this country.

The revision of the tariff of the Dominion government, will be submitted to parliament and it is quite probable that prohibitive rates of duty will be imposed on American manufactured goods that find a ready market in Canada.

The high rate imposed on lumber, fish and agricultural products by the Dingley bill, will be a great advantage to England. This will be another instance, if the bill becomes a law, where England will receive a direct benefit of our legislation, while our working classes will be the sufferers. While in a measure, the Canadians will have the satisfaction of retaliation, they will not be satisfied altogether with the situation, for while they can buy in England they cannot sell there.

The United States has been a great market for Canadian products, but with prohibitory duties, the main avenue of trade is blocked, which must necessarily create discontent among the people. The problem is a perplexing one, and the result of a tariff war will be to develop annexation sentiment in Canada.

The leaders of the Liberal party now in power have always advocated what they call "commercial annexation."

The Dingley bill, however, has convinced the Canadian Commissioners who visited Washington, that there is very little to be hoped for in the direction of commercial annexation. To the great mass of Canadian producers, a market for their crops is of infinitely more importance, than the maintenance of the present relations with Great Britain.

A Liberal party leader when asked what the Government of the United States could do to promote annexation, replied as follows:

Establish a prohibitory tariff on Canadian products, shut Canadian fish out of the markets of New England and New York, and deprive Canadian railroads of the bonded privilege. If you do that we will annex ourselves to you within the next five years.

GENERAL RIVERA'S EXECUTION WILL LIKELY NOT OCCUR.

The adoption of the resolution in the United States Senate by a unanimous vote, declaring that if the reports are true concerning the probable execution of Gen. Ruis Rivera, the President of the United States should protest to the Spanish Government against such a violation of the rules of civilized warfare, has the true ring to it, and no doubt the Spanish Government, through their representative at Washington, was immediately informed of the Senate's action. This likely accounts for the fact that Gen. Rivera was not summarily put to death. He has evidently been treated more courteously and considerately, and the Spanish authorities are endeavoring to obtain his influence with the insurgents, on the condition that his life will be spared, if he will aid in checking the insurrection. It is believed, however, that Rivera is too loyal to Cuba's demand for freedom to ever consent to such a proposition for the purpose of saving his life.

He knows that if his life was taken, it would almost insure the success of Cuba in gaining the rights so long contended for and he is soldier enough to give up his life that his country may be free.

Spain probably realizes this outcome as well as the great General, and will no doubt act cautiously in all things. It is also quite apparent that she is weakening and will consequently grasp any opportunity to maintain her prestige, if one appears.

It is probable that General Rivera's life will be spared, but Spain will use every conceivable effort to bring the Cuban's to time while they have the Cuban leader in their power.

THE POSTOFFICES.

Postmastsr General Gary announces his intention to continue the old policy of distributing patronage. He says he will not deviate from the practice of former Administrations. Every United States Senator will have the privilege of recommending a postmaster for his home postoffice, and each Republican Senator can name the postmaster for the largest postoffie in his district. No postmaster will be removed without good cause until the expiration of his four-year's term. This, while pleasing to those in office, is exasperating to those who want to get the offices, but if the rule is adhered to the outs will have to stand it, galling as it may be to those who voted for the single gold standard in expectation of getting office as a reward for their treachery to the State.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR JETER of California, has received from the Assistant Secretary of the Senate, memoranda of the cost of the recent Legislature as compared to the Legislature of 1895. In 1895 the cost of the Senate was: Pay of members, per diem and mileage, $21,218 20; officers and clerks, $6,882; contingent expenses, $55,000; total, $83,220 20. The total expenses of the Senate for 1897 were $75,600 49. In this is included $4,000, the cost of contesting election cases. The Senate of 1895 did not have that expense.

In 1895, the cost of the Assembly was $111,338 30, and in 1897 the cost was $120,177 40, making the cost of the last Assembly $8,839 01 more than the one of 1895.

NEVADA is apparently trying to live up to the reputation it has gained by legalizing prize fights and inviting lotteries. The local District Attorney at Carson the other day committed an assault with brass knuckles, while the Federal District Attorney is under indictment for levying blackmail upon Dan Stuart.—S. F. Bulletin.

The above is a fair sample of some of the advertising Nevada receives from metropolitan dailies, and comes about as near the facts, as much of the other stuff published. Anyone knowing the circumstances referred to above, knows that there isn't a single line in the paragraph, nor a reference to any incident mentioned that comes within miles of the facts.

THE Sacramento Bee scores Governor Budd on his actions in vetoing a number of provisions in the general appropriation bill. The Governor may have made mistakes, but it is more than probable that in some of the instances he had good cause of action. The late California Legislature did not seem to stop at any thing that provided an expenditure of money and the amount or the occasion appeared to be of little consequence. Governor Budd however exercised his constitutional right and cut out such appropriations as he no doubt believed were genuine steals.

THE MISSISSIPPI FLOODS.

The Prospects Somewhat Brighter and the People More Hopeful.

NEW ORLEANS, April 6.—Another day of good weather has aided the work of protection and the Louisiana levees are still safe. Supplies are hurried in every direction, and mud forts are arising above the levees, making them safer and stronger to resist the general yielding. In the city are many flat cars loaded with gravel filled sacks ready to be moved at a moment's notice, and the country is following the city's example.

ST. LOUIS, April 6.—With the continuance of cool and clear weather the flood situation is assuming a more reassuring aspect here. There is no change in the height of the river.

CHILLICOOHE, Mo., April 6.—The overflow of the Grand river is becoming serious. People are leaving the bottom land and coming to town. One family has been surrounded by water and have been rescued by boats. There is no loss of life as yet, but great damage to property has resulted.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 6.—A Fargo, North Dakota special says the situation is appalling. While the Red river rose only three inches last night, the Big Coulee, west of this city, took a second spurt and went up fourteen inches, flooding the entire west side of town and driving hundreds of people from their homes.

The water works at the station were compelled to shut down. There is much suffering among poor families.

A relief committee operated jointly by the City Council and the County Commissioners, established headquarters this morning. Sections of the country no one ever dreamed could be reached by the flood are now under water.

GREENVILLE, Miss., April 6.—The situation at the Yazoo and Mississippi valley is growing more desperate daily. Fully seven hundred towns are under water and many more are surrounded and cut off. There is no cessation in the constant pour of the flood of water into the valley from five rivers.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—An exciting debate between Morgan and Hale occurred during Morgan's Cuban speech. Hale denied Morgan's statement that Spanish prisons were stuffed with Americans.

Morgan asked Hale where his information came from, and then asserted that he knew who his informant was. The country knows who it was. The Senator from Maine, Hale, could not conceal the fact, asserted Morgan, that he was in communication with the Spanish Government.

Hale made an indignant denial, stating that not one item of his information came from Spanish sources and that it was entirely from Americans.

Morgan's Cuban resolution went to the Senate calendar, thus losing the privileged place.

Morgan gave notice that he would make a motion to-morrow to take it up with a view of securing final action.

The bankruptcy bill was taken up at 2 o'clock, and Stewart of Nevada took the floor to speak on it.

The Reno Choral Union will assist Frederic C. Lee next Wednesday, April 7th, in his famous lecture, "The Lady or the Tiger?"

Nevada.

Nevada is a victim of circumstances. Rich in the potentialities of material greatness, and therefore strong in the capacity to support a social structure, she presents the baffling paradox of a declining population in a Western State. If she were located in South Africa, the nations of Europe would plot and struggle for possession of her minerals, lands and waters; if in New South Wales, the colonial government would employ the public capital to reclaim her deserts, and enable the surplus population of Adeliade to make homes upon her soil; if in Germany, the Imperial Government would charter "rent banks" to operate under a commission in preparing the land for settlement and building humble houses, to be purchased by home seekers on generous terms; if in Holland, the servants of the Queen would extend the admirable colonies which have flourished for seventy-five years, graduating thousands of needy men from beggery to tenantry, from tenantry to proprietorship. But Nevada is in the United States; and the remedy for her misfortune is—to deprive her of her Senators!—Mr. William E. Smythe in April Forum.

Don't fail to attend Rev. F. C. Lee's lecture to-night on the subject of "The Lady or The Tiger?" The Reno Choral Society will render selections and a pleasant evening is promised.

The United States Grand Jury.

The United States Grand Jury completed the business presented yesterday.

A sealed indictment was brought in, which will not be made public until the accused is apprehended.

R. R. Kirby of Reno, charged with counterfeiting, was discharged.

J. E. Clemmens was indicted for the offense of counterfeiting.

J. L. Jones, E. R. Cloudley, Albert Mann and Ah Ki, who were indicted for selling whisky to Indians, pleaded guilty and will be sentenced Friday.

Sam Kong, Henry Brogan, and Martin Alvino, indicted on the same charge, pleaded not guilty and their trials will begin next Monday.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this remedy for coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Hodgkinson's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.

Travertine Company Sells.

The Travertine Company at Bridgeport has sold three-quarters of its stock to an English syndicate for $125,000 in gold coin. The new company will commence work with a capital of $250,000 and will put up the finest plant money can buy or that can be used to advantage. This means a great deal for that section of the county and incidentally for Carson, as all the material must come through here. There is other property in that vicinity of at least equal value that will probably be sold soon also, and a little boom in Nevada marbles and stones may be reasonably expected to follow. —News.

The California Medical Company, which held forth in Armory Hall for two weeks past is entertaining the good people of Wadsworth this week. Their entertainment is first-class, and they never fail to interest and please their audiences. Dr. Berry is a physician of note, and at each evening's entertainment he gives a short lecture giving much good advice regarding health and the treatment of such ailments as man is heir to.

Professor La Verne is an entertainer of rare merit and his exhibitions in magic and the black art cannot be excelled. In fact, the whole company is good. From a business standpoint all who have dealings with Dr. Berry will find him a pleasant gentleman and straight business in every particular. The company is recommended to the people of Wadsworth.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys, will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whisky nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price 50c. per bottle at Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

"The Lady or the Tiger?" should be heard by married and single; by the married to help them get right; and by the single to help them start right.

Diphtheria Cure.

The testimony of a prominent physician:

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind., June 17, 1895.

This certifies that I have been using V. O. in my practice. I have never found any medical preparation in 46 years of practice that is calculated to do so much good in so wide a range of diseases and leave no after bad effects. In Diphtheria it has proved a perfect specific in my hands, and I had rather depend on it alone in that dreadful disease than the whole popular Materia Medica with that left out.

A SMOKESTACK PROBLEM.

Many Schemes That Failed Before the High Chimney Was Painted.

At the cement works on the west shore of Hempstead harbor there is a smokestack 128 feet high and 8 feet in diameter which has long needed painting. The manager thought the time had come to dispose of the job. Two of the workmen, the shovel engineer and a young carpenter set their wits to work to contrive a way of getting a rope up through the pipe's interior and down on the outside so that an apparatus could be rigged to hoist the painter.

One of the Italians suggested letting a pigeon loose to fly up inside of the stack, but this solved only half the problem. Another workman suggested a small balloon. The first one to formulate what seemed a feasible plan was the head foreman, who fastened 10 feet of small brass chain to a rocket, and to that a cord, and then sent them skylarking through the pipe. As a spectacle it was fine, but the heat from the powder burned off the chain, and the string was left at its starting point. Then the younger foreman tried. He had made a kite having two strings, one of which went through a pulley attached near the kite, which had a small iron weight fastened to its upper end, the intention being to fly the kite until it was directly over the smokestack, and then lower the weight down into the interior.

The kite worked beautifully until it was time for it to be useful, when it turned a somersault, tangling itself in the pulley tackle, and the whole thing came to grief. Then the carpenter began to talk. He, too, remembered boyish pastimes and believed they could be turned to account. His idea was to encircle the cable tower, 90 feet distant and 150 feet high, and from this position throw into the smokestack a weight tied to a string. The wind was blowing a gale, but this did not discourage the men, and he, with the two foremen, ascended the tower for performance No. 3.

To throw a two pound weight fastened to a string was no easy matter, and it was exceedingly difficult to keep a foothold on the tower. After three trials, however, the weight fell as planned, save that the string broke. Later the carpenter tried again, casting the weight four times before it entered the stack.

When the rigging to hoist the painter was in order, there was a call for volunteers, but only one man responded. He was the shovel engineer, Will Snyder, from Chicago. He has had an experience in work in high places, for whenever the steel cable, 140 feet above the ground, needs tarring Snyder gets a paint pot, swings himself astride the framework of the traveler and paints the cable as the traveler goes back and forth on its regular business.

Several of the men employed at the cement works seem to be born acrobats, and they work up in the air as easily as on the ground, so that when repairs are needed on the towers or cables and cool, level headed men must be had there has never been any necessity to go outside of the regular force.—New York Sun.

NATURE AS AN ARTIST.

Stone Formations on Which Were Found Some Wonderful Pictures.

Pliny, a well known writer of about the time of Christ, mentions having seen an agate the lines and markings of which formed a perfect picture of Apollo and the nine muses. Pliny says that the little children recognized it on sight. In this wonderful natural picture, as well as the artificial drawings, Apollo was represented seated in the midst of the muses, harp in hand.

Majolus, another writer of high standing, saw an agate in the collection of a jeweler at Venice which, when polished, showed a perfect picture of a shepherd with a crook in hand and cloak thrown loosely over his shoulders.

In the church of St. John, at Pisa, Italy, there is a piece of stone heavily marked with red, blue and yellow spar, the lines representing an old man with heavy white beard, with a bell in his hand, seated beside a small stream. To the worshipers at St. John's it is known as the St. Anthony stone, the picture upon it being a perfect likeness of that saint, even to the minor details of tunic and bell.

In 1605 some quarrymen in Italy burst open a slab of marble, both sides of which contained an image of St. John the Baptist covered with the skin of a camel. Everything was true to nature—a single exception, the saint had only been provided with one leg and foot. How, when or upon what pretext the Turks were allowed to gain possession of the wonderful relic the writer's authority fails to state. It only adds that the miraculous production is now in the temple of St. Sophia at Constantinople.

Directly after the great Johnstown flood D. S. Wingrove, superintendent of the marble yard at the penitentiary at Baltimore, found a slab of marble with lines and veins which made a perfect picture of the fated city of Johnstown and the surrounding country. The sky is plainly marked, as are also the hills and mountains surrounding the town. Piles upon piles of ruins are marked, with an occasional steeple or toppling wall overhanging the scene of awful destruction. Taken all in all, the scientists consider it one of the most wonderful natural formations ever found in America.—Brooklyn Eagle.

EVE ETERNALLY CONFUSED.

An Ohio Picture of Human Nature With Worldwide Point.

As a Cedar motor and trailer approached Wilson avenue recently a woman was noticed dodging about the middle of the street. She was evidently hesitating as to which way to go, but finally crossed to the south track and stood there.

"Cross over to the other side!" roared a group of men on the corner.

"Look out for the car!" screamed a woman on the sidewalk.

The motorman clanged his bell and shouted, and the woman dodged out of harm's way. Then, as the train slowed down, she trotted alongside of the trailer.

"Here, where are you?" shouted the conductor.

In answer to the appeal the woman suddenly appeared around the rear of the trailer and put one foot on the step. Then she changed her mind and trotted to the front end of the car. Here she climbed up and came in the front door. The conductor snapped the bell, and the train started suddenly, tumbling the newcomer on to a fat man. As she straightened up she said:

"This car is going to Fairmount street, isn't it?"

"No, ma'am," replied the conductor, "it's going right the other way."

"There, I just thought it was!" cried the woman. "But you all yelled at me so that I got confused. I don't want to go on this car. Let me off."

So the conductor let her off at the next stopping place, and the last the passengers saw of her she was standing on the wrong side of the street waiting for an eastward bound car.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In winter when you see the wild geese flying south, according to New England weather lore, expect cold weather. They fly south because the ponds to the north are frozen over. When the geese are seen flying north, warm weather is to be expected.

AN OLD ENGLISH LETTER.

Lady Montrose of Two Hundred Years Ago Was a Poor Speller.

There is bad spelling and there is bad spelling. Artemus Ward and Josh Billings did some of it professionally, and many school children and some grown men and women do some of it even unto this day. But neither of these distinguished persons and no school child or grown up man or woman, even in his or her wildest dream of revenge against Webster et al., ever came within a mile of the spelling of a noble Scotch lady of 200 years ago.

She was personally Christian Leslie, daughter of the Duke of Rothes, and wife of the third Marquis of Montrose, and later of Sir John Bruce of Kinross. According to custom, having been a peeress she retained her peerage title. Thus it came about that Sir John Bruce lived with the Countess of Montrose with all propriety. But this was what she wrote:

KINGROSE, July 4, 1698.

MADAM—I render yow'r thowsant thankes for your play, which is very good, and I have retorneed itt with the bearer, and if your ladyshipe have eather eeny mor good playes or novells which you heve read, and will be pleased to loan them to me, I shall be vere fatheroull in restorenge, and take it a great faver, for they are vere deverting in the countory. Your lord did me the honouer to dayn hear yesterday, and was vere well hertely wished your ladyshipe had come alonge, for itt wold heve bin bott a devertisement in this good wather, and yow wold have bin vere wellcome to, dear madam, your ladyshipes most humble servant,
C. MONTROSE.

For the right honorable the Countess of Arandeall, at hir logeng in Netherayes, Wayndt, Edinburgh.

If readers who can't translate this will try temporarily to forget all they ever knew of spelling, and then will practice Lady Montrose's letter again, it is possible that they may learn what her ladyship wanted to say to Lady Annandale. What the latter said and wrote it is perhaps as well we do not know.—Philadelphia Times.

THE SLIDING POLE.

Very Handy to Use Going Down, but the Stairs Still Used Going Up.

Firemen use the sliding poles in the engine houses when descending from the dormitory floors to the street floor about their ordinary affairs just as they do when hustling down for a fire. It is the quickest and easiest way to go, and naturally they go that way always. To a man not a fireman, however, and so unaccustomed to it, the commonplace use of the sliding pole seems at first strange. He has seen it usually, perhaps only, from below, and the use of it is associated in his mind with the sound of the gong, the pounding of the horses' hoofs, the snapping of harness and the general bustle of preparation. To see the firemen come dropping down the sliding poles into this scene of activity seems all right. It seems like a part of the general scheme. But if one who has been accustomed only to seeing them come down the poles in this way should happen at a time of quiet in the house to be on an upper floor, and instead of seeing firemen shoot into view should see one suddenly and silently disappear, that sight probably would at first be surprising to him.

At first it seems strange to see any man, fireman or not, slide down a pole to start for his dinner, for instance, but that is what the fireman does, and it is just the same if he is going below for any duty in the house. He goes down the pole habitually because that is the simplest and easiest way to go. But he doesn't go back that way. Easy as it is to slide down the pole, it would be mighty hard work to shin up it. When the fireman goes up, then, like everybody else he climbs the stairs.—New York Sun.

Certain American Editions.

The American editions of many English authors were of prime importance in the careers of the writers, and to ignore them is to ignore most potent factors in their lives. The publication of the "Yellowplush Correspondence" in Philadelphia was followed by the "Comic Tales and Sketches," and the success of the American book was the influence that induced the London publisher to assume the risk. In the same way the miscellanies collected from original sources and published in 12 volumes by the Appletons in New York in 1852 and 1853 induced the publication of the miscellanies in London in 1855 to 1857. Thackeray carried home a set of these Appleton volumes to aid him in selecting the papers for the London issue, and yet, would the bibliographer tell us that the London edition of 1855-7 was the "first," and that the New York edition exists not at all?—Book Buyer.

Classicism and Romanticism In Music.

Classical composers are those of the first rank who have developed music to the highest pitch of perfection on its formal side, and, in obedience to generally accepted laws, preferring æsthetic beauty, pure and simple, over emotional content, refusing to sacrifice form to characteristic expression. Romantic composers are those who have sought their ideals in other regions and striven to give expression to them, irrespective of the restrictions and limitations of form and the conventions of law—composers with whom, in brief, content outweighs manner.—"How to Listen to Music," Krehbiel.

The First Blankets.

In the reign of Edward III there were at Bristol three brothers who were eminent clothiers and woolen weavers, and whose family name was Blanket. They were the first persons who manufactured that comfortable material, which has ever since been called by their name and which was then used for peasants' clothing.

John Bunyan fought on the Roundhead side during the civil war in England. This has been definitely settled by the discovery of his name in several places on the muster rolls of the parliamentary garrison of Newport Pagnell. Some people, it seems, thought John fought for King Charles.
